

Adjustment Of United States Law Surrounding Mental Health

It is of really dire vital importance to steer the course of history in a better direction due to how out of control things have gotten thus far. Despite there being some medical care more affordable than others, We are not as developed as Canada with the free health care, and desperate times call for desperate measures– which are not always safe.

We don't want to be an underdog country when we have the capability of being one of the best countries out there in the world, but other countries are far ahead of the U.S developmentally technologically speaking

We have gathered enough trial and error data to compare what works vs. what doesn't and what hasn't been working. It is up to us to be clinically responsible to ensure the better outcome for the future and generations mental health faculties. Denying to afford them a test of mental health or a clean bill of mental health can lead to ultimate ruin or worse destruction of the American people.

American government can't risk having someone work a State job without proper testing. Risk can cause death if one is not all there mentally or is mentally impaired. Risk of Death to American people, and lack of proper testing to evaluate mental faculties which can cause death to American people, can be equated with terrorism. Terrorism is something we should never allow or risk to allow within or outside of the American continent.

The American government needs to be more responsible to instill mental tests to evaluate criminal capacity.

Such tests are brain scans, chromosome tests, pupillary response tests to rule out schizophrenia and other impulse control loss. We must develop ways to ensure America provides these to State officials currently in office and furthermore, preferably prior to students graduating high school, around the age of 18, This helps to better prepare oneself with knowledge of where they struggle and prevent them from going in any line of business which requires them to control themselves such as If they lack impulse control or show unusual predispositions of accumulated mental tendencies. (Have these tests be facilitated at high school during one's younger years to prevent/steer course of one's life to avoid trauma or reharmining. Keep notes of their test results)

Brain scans are reliable forms for showing any miswiring and likelihood of committing criminal acts, even with authority figures. Tests can help us make the best choice of person for office alongside other tests, and it can be compared with other's tests as evidence at evidentiary hearing and trials prior to hiring someone for office. It seems like now we are just promoting and hiring whoever without as much needed aforethought. This is a sure-fire way to help Americans see which person really would be best suited for any such job in the long haul, which can prevent a lot of hassle and remove a lot of needless worry. Scans can afford us to not overlook any concerns from someone, such as if their test proves they actually would act out in a way we otherwise might not normally believe and let someone get away with criminally. Tests can afford a lot of safety mechanisms which can help eradicate costly damage done from a person abusing a government positions.

Abuse due to mental disorders from authority figures can be avoided if we were more responsible. Abuse and mental disorders left unchecked from authorities in office can create what is known as violent extremism (HVE's) or home-grown terrorists. We go to extremes to fight war outside our country but not a lot within. Terrorism within our own country is even worse and we go to war lengths in other countries to try to prevent it in our country, but we have not yet mastered taking proper responsibility to stop terrorist from brewing with inside our country walls. At times inner country terrorism is created by even our own government due to their abuse or misuse of power caused by mental disorders that brain scans could help altogether avoid.

People can act like terrorists and be inclined to terrorist or criminal behaviors. This can be easily shown through a brain scan. Overlooking this from the people in government and civilians can cost America it's life. This is too costly of a risk to take. We can prevent and keep tabs on where potential outrageous problems could be due to brain scans and pupillary response tests allowing us to understand when there is a likelihood to commit. This helps when we are told of corruption and some now may choose not to believe it, which ends up being a costly messy catastrophe to clean up when corruption runs rampant. Scans will allow to show one whose job it is to investigate such reports if the concern is of a more serious nature due to the test results. This can help allow one to decide when the best times to investigate are. This can help people not overlook concerns due to a badge or authority position that people can often times even hallucinate their way to, to behind with.

To start, if we could, take a little responsibility to make sure to test all freemasons and people who work with or have sway in the child care industry like DCFS, civil courts, Judges, lawyers with children and families and even police officers (Virtually anyone whose job it is to work with the public, make civil court rulings or work in government.) Then have them banned from entering back until further testing and counseling after they are kicked out. This can afford Americans some research techniques and safe time we need to improve the quality of life for everyone.

Reason being why is because when people see children, they act out. Some people can become ill just by hearing the word children or hearing trigger words which make them think about them in sexual ways which are out of control and interfere with some dictatorship capabilities. They're people who are too overwhelmed at matters pertaining to children and may never find out they are that way until they're too late like with judges and civil court proceedings perhaps, who don't have kids.

If these people pass these tests then they can run for politics, government positions, other legally realmed job or take such programs of study courses. One may not be allowed to tread even lightly in these areas until further testing after treatment. Brain disorders could risk being a huge danger to the American population due to the fact that these people can't be relied on and have behavior problems deeply rooted in brain and chromosomes which may cause one to act out under stress or unusual stimuli that alternatively, one might need to have the capability to not let plague or overpower them in order to do a job more adequately.

Stress like from jobs in office, if of a dire importance for these people to try and avoid. Stress from work can seriously increase a mentally ill person's criminalistic, suicidal and homicidal tendencies, and increase unreasonable and wrong thinking. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out a lot of stuff that more reliable and tested person would be able to make clear sense of and be relied on.

A lot of these mental issues can be tricky to catch sometimes such as with those who try to impose their will on others to try to have them think they are God, Ghandi or Allister Crowley types due to their mental distortion or unchecked brain anatomy. Chromosome distortions can cut off circulation to the brain in some areas which cause ulcers, polyps, sores, inactivated or distorted reasoning faculties in the brain and lowered safety aptitude.

There is no excuse to allow further abuse to American people if we allow these people to continue to wreak havoc from their unidentified mental diseases in these positions. If all else fails all their assets, values and net worths can be seized to allow changes and adjustments of U.S. Government to be made.

If and when these people do fail to comply with what given protocols or treatment therapies are set out before them. they could be sent to treatment camps for longer periods of time for testing, imprisonment or have psychiatric hospitals try to fully resolve this issue with lobotomies, a very well treatment, castration, science experimentation, or death or torture as experimentation or punishment if these people are too obnoxious to continue treatment.

Mental testing is necessary for children leaving high school from here on out. Those who are entering college who could be ill could also be suffering delusions about their end goal that the public should not be subject to due to mental health reasons.

A wrist bracelet could be worn to prevent fraud, a warning label could be shown alongside their name and documentation should be made of what they have if any, labeled in different classes.

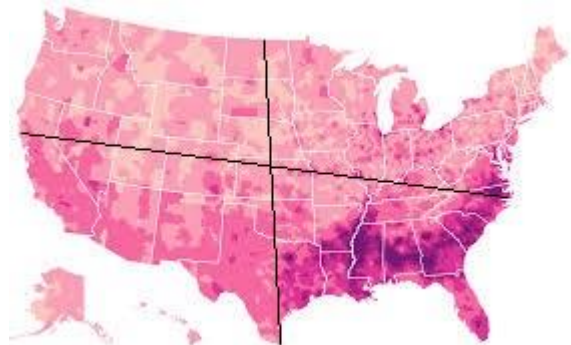

A. Extreme danger

B. Minor danger which could increase if left untreated (very likely among these types of individual)

C Capable of reinstating higher optimal mental faculties based on types of proper treatment

D. Need closely monitored due to spikes in certain mental tendencies, impulses and areas.

Centers for monitoring should be instilled with four main headquarters in each quadrant for the United States with extensions to this spread over regions and even some at police stations and DCFS offices. Some services could be mobile like a Health monitoring service with mobile capabilities where properly qualified and trained workers travel, there are ride shares or facilities where these people can stay for more intensive therapy treatment and testing if needed. Each quadrant should have specialized treatment centers dispersed evenly enough so that people aren't too far from receiving treatment or being afforded services.

This could be like a DCFS agency only with the services that they should actually apply based on DCFS protocol. DCFS could be reformed into this and especially if and when more proper DCFS personnel are legally abided to work there. Currently extremely uneducated people work there. Due to present DCFS workers untreated and undocumented mental disorders, they are a threat to society which is very close to a form of Inner country terrorism. This is nothing to hide from the public. Knowledge is key and we could all learn something.

If treatment camps are failed options they can always be executed, routinely murdered or people like Gina Haspel can run science tests or experiments on them. These people are unable to fulfill any reasonable duty to aide by American Standards or perform well on the job. We need to raise the mental health standard to the highest maximum capacity bar to best ensure we at least fall somewhere in a reasonable and effective likelihood.

Subjects with such brain distortions or abnormalities can undergo a series of treatments such as hypnosis taken back to womb therapy. Instilling positive messages and sounds in tranquil states. not a harmful environment, have proven more effective to not further anyone's given mental illness which could be present already due to genetics. Gene there can also be useful tool.

Government can store stem cells and replace them from more healthy subjects, Heavy documentation can be afforded and rechecked after college graduation leading to more success later in life. Doctors might want to inform people that smoking can cause or lead to further health damage such as like with chromosome deficiencies causing schizophrenia and how it gets worse with smoking or other certain environmental factors like abuse and trauma which would cause one to want to be weary of it and steer clear far from it.

Malnutrition can also be a factor like certain herbs which cause certain mental disease to be worse. Food triggers, joblessness and homeless rates have been proven beyond a reasonable doubt for a long time to cause all sorts of mental disorders and elongated mental illness rates.

Without proper medical procedures like these tests, we wouldn't be allowed to advance scientifically as a country how we need to and we might end up getting labeled a bunch of morons.

It is okay to hold people clinically responsible in order to protect the best interest of humanity and have people's rights best respected. After all, we are a country which stands for freedom but how can we apply knowledge to make the U.S government better if we won't allow its implementation to gather data from. A more informed country is a better and safer country for all from now on into the future. I hope you liked my Ideas for reform of U.S. Government.
